

In the last National Election, there were more American Idol votes cast than for President. Keep up the good work!

The Politicians don't care. Why should you?

This election season, remember to get out there and skip the voting booth. Life is too short to read about the issues, get behind a candidate, or get involved with the process. Be a good American this year and tune out all of the political arguments and debates. Your time will be much better spent keeping track of the latest Hollywood drug-addicted DWI-driving baby-adopting movie star, reading about the latest video game releases, and checking out the Celebrity Square Dancers competition on TV. Those are the things that really matter. Voting is for suckers! Or go ahead and vote. It really doesn't matter to me.
